

Pitt Study Abroad Application Review Rubric

Score	Application Essay - Overall Content	Application Essay - Academic Seriousness of Purpose	Application Essay - Pre-Professional Seriousness of Purpose	Application Essay - Goals	Semester Standing	GPA	Program Specific
Definition	Essays are well-researched and written, demonstrating a critical understanding of the program, region, and expected outcomes.	Essays demonstrate clear understanding of the courses that are offered and how courses/experiences apply to a student's degree plan and/or academic goals.	Essays demonstrate a clear understanding of how program academics and experiences will develop needed transferable, professional and/or discipline-specific skills.	Goals are realistic and related to the content of the program. Goals are Specific, Measurable, Achievable, and Relevant.	Priority is typically given to students who are later in their degree progress if/when programs have capacity limits.	The University of Pittsburgh's GPA requirement to study abroad is 2.75. Students below this GPA are ineligible to apply. Some programs may have higher GPA requirements. Add the student's GPA here.	Some study abroad options have program specific admission criterion such as language, academic discipline, mix of students from academic backgrounds, and program preference ranking. Please see the corresponding program web page for additional information on these elements.
